

Main principles of tandem

Main principles:

Reciprocity

« Learning a language in tandem involves a partnership in which each partner provides abilities and skills that the other seeks to acquire. The partners support each other.

Their relationship of mutual dependence requires that they commit themselves to each other so that they can each benefit equally from the work together. »

Autonomy

« Both partners are responsible for their own learning. Each partner chooses what he/she wants to learn, how he/she wants to learn it, when he/she wants to learn it and what kind of support he/she wants from his partner. »
